

February 09, 2026: On Exactly Where Donald Trump Went Wrong in One Picture

See, the world used to love America. The world would proudly have embraced America willingly and voluntarily if given the opportunity. In fact, most of the world did embrace America, and 'Americanize' themselves to the ideal image that they had of what a country could represent and become - if only the corruption and problems of their own region could be fixed or eliminated.

Unfortunately, Donald Trump failed to learn exactly what was great about America and instead only learned what was 'great' about himself and what he likes the most about one thing or another. Rather than growing to become 'American', Donald grew large enough to make America into Donald Trump. And, now his tiny-minded and selfish perception is unable to fathom why the entire world, even Americans, now hate his new creation.

Had Donald - or any person - simply looked at the values that America (used to and) is supposed to represent, and did his very best to adjust himself and grow into the image that was already loved, then he too would have been embraced and loved by the entire world.

Unfortunately for us all, the Old Glory of the Red, White and Blue has been reduced to the 'old glory' of a failing, unserious, self-absorbed, and abusive idiot.

Simply put, Donald Trump attempted to remake America into his own image and then use that new creation to force an empire across the world.

The world swiftly rejected him.
